Exploring your results

	Take time to understand your report. Consider your response rate to determine how representative your results are of the views of your colleagues.
No data?	Depending on the size of the group this report is about, some data may be missing. This is because either there are no responses or they have been withheld to protect confidentiality.
2021/25	Some questions were also asked in 2021 – if the identifier used to create this report was also collected in 2021, slides will include this comparison.
	Most questions in this report have information about the proportion of colleagues responding positively, neutrally or negatively.
	Identify the areas where you are performing well. These will tend to be high results which are notably above any comparative results. Celebrate these results.
	Identify areas that need improvement. These will be the lower results, and/or those which are scoring notably below your comparators.
	Generally a difference of $-/+ 5$ percentage points is worthy of attention, but the size of the group is important. Changes in small groups can be unreliable. A result that appears as 0% or blank may either represent a true 0% result, or a situation where a small count means the result has been suppressed to protect employee privacy.
